Breakfast Highlights '56 K.E.A.

Regional Music Festival Held On Campus Today

The Regional Music Festival is being held today and tomorrow on the Western Campus.

Two thousand students from thirty-three schools of this area are participating.

There are five hundred entries in the sixty-five events.

Mr. Claude Rose, of the music department states that this is the largest festival that Western has ever had.

Winners are eligible to compete in the state festival held here and at Lexington.

The school getting the most points is awarded a sweepstake.

Campbellsville won the honor last year.

Members of the committee in charge are: Ida Weidemann, Bowling Green High, Claude Rose, Western; and Dr. Hugh Gunderson, Western.

The adjudicators of the festival are: Miss Gertrude Bale, WKSC; Mr. Bennie Beach, WKSC; Mr. K. V. Bryant, Princeton, Ky.; Dr. Howard Carpenter, WKSC; Mr. Virgil Diem, Henderson; Mr. Donald McMahon, WKSC; Mr. Fielder Myers, New Albany, Indiana; Mr. Ohm Paul, WKSC; and Mr. Joseph Running, WKSC.

The State Music festival will be held April 26-28.

Western Allotted $1,192,235 in New Budget Bill

Western has been allotted $1,192,235 plus all proceeds from auxiliary enterprises operated by the College in appropriation under the new Chandler budget for the school year 1955-56.

As compared with the 1954-55 school year, about $231,690 more is proposed to be appropriated for the college next year while the total proposed budget for the 1957-58 school year is $1,526,740.

President E. Kelly Thompson said this figure, however, constitutes only about 50 to 60 per cent of the outright appropriation.

He went on to say the entire appropriation would include the state appropriation plus trust and agency enterprises.

Eastern State College was allotted a proposed appropriation of $1,395,987 for the 1955-56 school year while Murray State College was allotted $1,240,425.

President Thompson said the reason for these two colleges being allotted more than Western was that they had more dormitories.

He said the total state appropriations for Western plus the trust and agency donations would amount to more than the total appropriations and endowments of each of the other colleges.

Neill Owen To Play For Talisman Ball April 20

by Jack Sagabiel

When springtime rolls around at Western a young man's fancy turns to the Talisman Ball—what the girls have been thinking about all winter. On April 20 girls will don their best formal and the boys their tux for the 21st annual Talisman Ball.

This royal occasion will launch Western's celebration of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the college.

Mrs. H. R. Mathews, former head of the English department at College High, named Western's annual, the Talisman. This annual was published for the first four year graduating class in 1924.

Neill Owen and his orchestra will play for the 1956 Talisman Ball

Highlight of the festivities will be the introduction of the anniversary Talisman King and Queen, Class Representatives and Campus Favorites. With Wayne Evers as Master of ceremonies, the ceremony will be conducted in a new and unusual way. Never before has this method been attempted at the Garrett Student Center. The daughter of a faculty member will act as crown bearer and she will be escorted by the son of a faculty member. Music for the occasion will be by Neill Owen and his orchestra.

Owen has played for Cotillion and Bachelor clubs in Nashville, Vanderbilt fraternities and sororities, and other groups in that area.

The Talisman Ball is sponsored by the Talisman staff and the senior class. The chairman of the ball is the feature editor of the Talisman, Emmalee Jones. Other members of the committee include: Jane Winchester, representing the Talisman staff and Jack Sagabiel, representing the senior class.

Tickets may be purchased from any senior class officer or Talisman staff member. The price is $3.50 in advance and $3.00 at the door.

Committees for the ball include: advertisement, Judy Hanam; newspaper publicity, Don Bell; decoration, Beth Hines; throne, H. B. Martin; band back drop, Bill Summerhill and Kishle Johnson; props, Maurice Utley; invitations, Margaret Pickens and lighting, George Orr.

This week I'm going to get my order in for a flower, buy a ticket, have my tux pressed, and . . . hope to see you at the 50th anniversary Talisman Ball.

New Parking Lot Under Construction

Construction of a new parking area between Potter Hall and the Student Center began March 28 under the supervision of R. C. Woodward, superintendent of grounds.

The parking area will be used on a part-time basis for the faculty. Woodward stated that the new parking area would provide parking space for 17 cars.

Buildings have also been built at various places on the campus to help keep pedestrians from taking short cuts across the grass.

High School Senior Day To Be Held May 4 At Western

by Tom Davis

High School Senior Day will be held at Western on Friday, May 4, for the first time since 1941, according to an announcement by President Kelly Thompson last week.

More than 4,000 high school seniors are expected to visit Western. Due to the conditions brought about by the war, it was necessary to discontinue this fine event. High School Senior Day was inaugurated at Western in 1934 and was held thereafter through 1941.

The visiting seniors will assemble in the gym at 10 a.m. Registrar E. H. Cannon will be in charge of having students located throughout the gym to greet the seniors.

An elaborate program has been planned to last the entire day. The activities will get under way with a program in the gym, with President Thompson presiding. This program consists of the raising of the flag and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, then the mayor of Bowling Green, the Dean and the Registrar will be introduced. The band will play one number and the cheerleaders will lead the group in one cheer. The Physical Education department will then present a short program.

Luncheon will be served at 11:30 in the Western stadium and an afternoon of varied activities will follow.

At 1 p.m. the ROTC department will stage their annual Awards Day Program in the stadium. The band will play for this program. In conjunction with the awards day program the Parahing Rifles will put on a demonstration of precision drill.

At 2 p.m. the Western track team, under the direction of Turner Eirod, will demonstrate high jumping, broad jumping, 100 yard dash, and other track events. Sports will continue with a baseball game at the Western diamond at 2:30 p.m.

From 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. open house will be held in all departments with displays and demonstrations. The choir will give a concert in Van Meter Auditorium at 2 p.m.

In order for the first Senior Day since 1941, every student at Western is urged to characterize those of years gone by.

Ogden Day Is Celebrated

Winners of the three recent oratorical contests spoke during the Ogden Day Program held in chapel Wednesday, March 4.

Giving their winning speeches were Greg O'Neil, Nancy Highower and J. C. Embry. This part of the program was under the direction of Dr. Earl A. Moore, of the English department, in the absence of Russell H. Miller, director of speech activities.

President Kelly Thompson introduced the program by telling of the origin of the relationship between Ogden College and Western. In 1928, Ogden College for young men, made a lease with Western, merging the two institutions. Ogden turned over its property, Ogden Hall and Snell Hall. The Ogden board also gives 100 scholarships to Warren County students each year. They also award the Ogden Trustee medal which is for the Western student with the highest scholastic record. President Thompson emphasized "the very fine relationship which exists between Ogden and Western."

Nancy Highower, winner of the AAUW Oratorical, delivered her speech "H Tomorrow Comes"; J. C. Embry spoke on "So Little Time" and Greg O'Neil winner of the Robinson speaks on "Are Teenagers Delinquent."

Herbert J. Smith, acting regent for Ogden spoke of the "fine tradition of this institution" and stated that he felt "it was being carried on magnificently." He closed his remarks by thanking Western for letting Ogden live on.

SENIOR MEMORIAL COMMITTEE AT WORK

The Senior Class Memorial Committee consisting of Lou Mae Davis, Chairman, Don Bell, Assistant Chairman, and Bobby Hensley, President of the Senior Class, has been working on all possibilities for a portrait of Dr. Paul Garrett as a gift to the college. In the past three months, the committee has been to almost every home in Bowling Green, with assistance and support of Miss Temple of the Art department, looking at portraits done by many well known artists. After discussing the matter with Mrs. Sarah Peyton of Winter Park, Fla. on Wednesday afternoon, April 4, she agreed to visit the Western Campus Monday April 16, to make further arrangements for the portrait.

We Can Solve Problem

To the educator, a dream college would be one so liberally endowed that it could furnish the best in educational equipment and facilities. This is a common dream that educators have always tried to attain. In some instances, with the aid of wealthy alumni and interested philanthropists, this goal has been reached and showed far-reaching results.

Far in the majority are colleges like Western who struggle with a limited budget in order to give the best education possible to its students, but when graduates from colleges with large endowments and excellent learning facilities are compared with their less fortunate brothers it is amazing to see how the latter have become equally "well educated" in spite of their so called handicap. Western is even more fortunate than most colleges in its size bracket in turning out well educated people largely because we have a superior faculty, many of them equal to any educator in the United States.

Admittedly we have a fine teaching staff, but we also must admit that our equipment often fails to measure up to the quality of our teachers. Why is this true? The administration has accomplished minor miracles in proving equipment on its limited budget. Our state is not the richest in the nation and cannot afford to lavish a budget for education as other states.

Strangely enough much of this problem can be blamed on us, the student body. Through our carelessness, a large amount of money, which could be spent in purchasing new equipment, must be spent in repairing and replacing old equipment. A large staff must be maintained to repaint restroom walls, pick up debris on the campus, and perform other duties.

The quality and quantity of equipment at Western can be vastly improved if we develop a deep sense of campus pride. We urge you to construct instead of complain. It makes good sense.

Orchestra Commended

Who said that good music could only be appreciated by the highly educated?

There has long been a misconception about good music and who is qualified to enjoy it. Many maintain that a thorough understanding of music is essential to its enjoyment, and others feel that, as they lack this understanding, really good music has no place in their life.

An effort to present good music with an explanation or introduction, the Western Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Howard Carpenter and Ohm Pauli serving as commentator, gave a Youth Concert Monday, March 29. Young people from Warren County and the surrounding area filled Van Meter Auditorium to capacity. The interest shown by the "over-flow" audience was matched by the concert given by the orchestra, which was simple in style yet thoroughly good music. Included in the concert were familiar pieces such as The Star Spangled Banner, John Henry, The Typewriter and My Old Kentucky Home. The orchestra also played Overture to the Marriage of Figaro, Concerto No. 1 in D, and Hungarian March. Before the concert, the music was simply explained in order to increase the enjoyment of it.

It is deeply gratifying to see the Western Orchestra use its talents in an effort to broaden the musical scope of the young people in this area. We believe that this effort did much to accomplish that which should be followed by other organizations on the Hill.

Kentucky Building News

By Ken Burch

The Kentucky Library has a very fine collection of church records which are used for research in many different ways.

Fully acceptable proof of birth, marriage and death may be obtained from the records of the Presbyterian and Episcopal churches. These facts are often in demand for procuring pensions of all types, birth certificates and proof of American citizenship. They were of particular importance during the last World War when certain kinds of employment excluded persons of foreign birth and descent.

The records of the other denominations do not furnish such extensive personal facts, but they do give lists of members and a great deal of useful information.

The Minute Books present an interesting study in contrast between the old and present day attitude of the churches in both secular and religious matters. The minutes of the Old Green River Baptist Church, Munfordville, Ky., of 1803-1827, give an account of the accusation and trial of one of its members for witchcraft! This took place in 1813.

The Rev. Bailey Davis, pastor of the Baptist Church at Franklin, Ky., and the Rev. Hinkley Smartt, pastor of the local Cumberland Presbyterian Church, were engaged in research at the Kentucky Library this week.

"Guys and Dolls"—No, just dolls. The college library is currently featuring an interesting and instructive display of books about old dolls and children's toys of the past. For that reason it would seem appropriate to call attention to the large doll collection in the Relic Room of the Kentucky Museum.

Shortly after the collecting for the Kentucky Building was begun, some early china-head dolls were brought in to be preserved and displayed, and since that first donation something like a hundred old dolls have been received. Most of them are on display at present, and the remainder will be put out as case space becomes available.

The collection contains dolls of a great many periods and types. The ages of many of them can be reasonably determined by the style of hair dress, for, contrary to the custom for many years of making all dolls look like babies or young children, the old-time dolls had the features of and were dressed as adults.

Undoubtedly the oldest dolls in the collection came from Miss Mary Underwood. They are very lovely, too, but the most beautiful of all those in the collection came in 1940 from Mrs. V. P. Bradburn, of Woodburn. It is a "Parian" doll, with a beautifully-molded patrician face, long blonde hair piled in curls on top of the head and with tiny ornaments in the ears. This doll has been the subject of much comment.

There is only one boy doll in the collection, also only one negro type. Both are quite rare. There are several wax dolls, some of bisque, and two that are most unusual—the are ornamental dolls with heads made of eggshells.

In addition to the dolls, there are several pieces of interesting doll furniture, which reflect the styles of the times in which they were first used. One item, probably as much discussed as anything in the museum, is a small, iron "step" stove, typical in many households some years ago. It is fitted with kettles, skillets, clothes irons, and a copper wash boiler. Other items of doll furniture include chairs, beds, dressers, cabinets, cradles, a trunk and a piano. There is a very lovely set of toy dishes, copying the "iron-stone" ware, which has become a favorite collector's item. Two very unusual doll carriages add their touch to the displays.

HILLTOPICS

By DON BELL

Be no kind, greedy, intelligent, dumb, a roommate at college is a vital part of anyone's experience in higher education. Although he may not be pleasant to live with, he is necessary in obtaining that golden goal, education.

What are these mysterious creatures? How do they function? Do they have a life other than the one we see, which consists of dazed mornings and talkative nights. Do they have problems or a purpose in life, or are they existing for the sole purpose of keeping you awake nights, "borrowing" your soap, prying into your personal life and keeping the room filled with their crummy friends.

Roommates vary in size, quantity and personality, take for instance my first "roomy." Leaving a home where the only overnight company I'd ever been subjected to was my little brother, who visited with me in case of company, I was faced with a music major. Being a freshman was the only thing we had in common. He liked a closed musky room; I was a fresh air fiend. He liked to sleep until eleven; I got up at seven. These difficulties being only minor, we soon settled down, and I had a chance to observe his peculiarities at leisure.

Like all people with artistic talent, his response to situations seemed rather odd. When he was confronted with a difficult situation he would contemplate over peanut butter smeared crackers spread over his bed like cards arranged for a game of solitaire. If the peanut butter treatment failed, he would release inner tension by sneaking into the music building late at night and playing on the piano until daybreak.

Playing tricks on me was his chief delight. His best remembered joke was when he hid my clean sheets and poured a well known brand of after-shave lotion on my bed before going home for a week-end visit. In a display of good sportsmanship, he was amply repaid with a jar of honey between his sheets on the next weekend when I left for home.

Friendships are made or broken by rooming with a person. My next roommate and I proved this statement by making and breaking our friendship a thousand times during the course of two years. It wasn't that we had entirely different personalities, we had many things in common. We agreed that we were both thoroughly superior to most people, our ideas on books, music and women were compatible. We were in dispute over one thing, the meaning of the word "late." I thought that "late" meant early in the morning, he thought it meant at sunset.

In an attempt to solve this problem, we rearranged the furniture in our room and divided it into two equal parts with a chalk line. This worked well even though people asked us why we didn't move if we hated each other so much. Chalk fades and so do strong opinions, so we drifted back into a normal relationship and pushed our definitions back with the stored suitcases and summer clothes.

We neutralized each other. I got enough sleep for the first time in 18 years, and he discovered that things really happened at night. Like all good compromises, this one failed to continue when I made friends with a group of people who liked night life as well as I did. This friendship progressed until they began promptly blowing a horn under my window each night at twelve to go and get something to eat. Eating is one thing, talking takes more time, so I usually ended these little jaunts by running into the room at 2 a.m. and argued with my "roomy" to which he made an equal amount of noise early in the morning. Compromises came, but they were frequent and short. Finally we ended up living in the same room, but not speaking to each other.

Strangely enough there was little animosity on either side, we simply did not speak. This presented all sorts of problems such as coming into the room and finding him devouring choice morsels which in happier days he would have shared, or both of us carrying on a discussion during a bull session and being careful not to speak to each other.

This problem was solved by getting new roommates. We can now freely lend and borrow money, swap clothes, eat off each others mealtickets and go to bed when we please.

Some people are cynics, and so is my present roommate. What a joy these people are. They lack exuberance, and therefore make little noise. They are so sure of their own opinions that they have little time to correct you. They have little interest in your "boring" personal life and friends and cause little trouble along that line. In short they are a pleasure to live with.

When I come in late in the evening, my "roomy" contents himself with mutterings over his confirmed opinion of me, and fails to toss the usual barrage of, "Why don't you go to bed." Like all cynics he is a late sleeper and leaves me free of early morning whistling.

Roommates are wonderful creatures, full of humor, gripes and troubles, an asset when you need to get your girlfriend's sweet-mate a date, and a liability when "three's a crowd." Ready to comfort you when you have the blues and to antagonize you every waking hour, your college roomy is an education within himself.

Looking Backward

FOUR YEARS AGO—Striking through the air and on the ground with the poise and precision of the Veteran Aggregation they are the undefeated Hilltoppers roll to their third straight victory of the season beating the Morehead Eagles, 29-7.

SIX YEARS AGO—Tommy Beard, Hardinsburg Junior is Kentucky State Baptist Student Union President for 1949-1950.

J. C. Embry, left, is shown being congratulated by Wayne Every on winning the Ogden Oratorical Contest March 27. Embry also appeared on the Ogden Day Chapel program Wednesday, April 4.

"Little Time" Wins Ogden Oratorical For J.C. Embry

"Wake up America! National Security is synonymous with National survival," J. C. Embry stated in his speech "So Little Time," which won for him the Ogden Oratorical Contest March 27.

Embry, a senior, from White Mills, is a major in social science. A member of the History club, he is the Publicity Director in the Western Players.

The Ogden Oratorical Speech Contest is sponsored by the Ogden Alumni Association and held annually to select the outstanding speakers from the boys of the junior and senior classes of Western. As winner, Embry appeared on the Ogden Day program at chapel April 4.

Arts And Crafts Sponsors Exhibit In Van Meter

A wood-turning lathe and modern solid maple desk are the features in the Arts and Crafts Club exhibit in the Rotunda of Van Meter.

Richard Baker a '56 graduate in Industrial Arts made the lathe for a project in his machine shop courses. The solid maple desk is a project of William Paul a senior in Industrial Arts.

Projects made in the fall semester seldom appear in the open shop in the spring as the students take them home. The Arts and Crafts club is sponsoring this exhibit so these projects made the first semester may be seen.

Library Notes

The library has recently received the Rand McNally Commercial Atlas and Marketing Guide. This is a very valuable reference book giving much information not found in other atlases. It is especially good for economic geography.

The guide contains economic maps of the U. S. showing the distribution of crops and live stock, mining and manufacturing, and retail trade. It has maps of the states with statistics giving detail information about county populations and areas, railroads, air lines and air ports, post offices, banking, facilities, marketing data for principal business centers, etc. Also shown are world maps giving world economic tables and detail information of world resources.

Other recent additions to the Library include two books given through the Marion LeRoy Billings Memorial Fund:

Outside Readings in Psychology, by Hartley, Birch, and Hartley. Social Learning and Clinical Psychology, by Julian B. Rotter.

A panoramic poster of toys of bygone and present days attracts attention to the special display for this month. Every adult has a treasured toy of his childhood and remains at heart a child in this respect. Toys of one kind or another have existed from the beginning of time, crude though the earliest ones may have been. They portray the manners and customs of their own era, providing a history of man's cultural development.

Children's Toys of Bygone Days, by Karl Grober, is a beautifully illustrated book of history of playthings of all peoples from prehistoric times to the nineteenth century. The emphasis is on European countries, especially Germany, while Leslie Daiken's Children's Toys Throughout the Ages tells more about English made toys.

The Fascinating Story of Dolls, by Janet Johl, treats the subject as a record of civilization, beginning with countries of Egypt, Greece, and Rome. A chapter on some of the artists who have made dolls is particularly interesting. A Pageant of Dolls by Lesley Gordon, approaches the subject by type, such as puppet, rag, soap, edible, talisman, being a few of those described in part one. Part two discusses dolls by country, with information on manufacturers.

Adventuring with Toys relates the development of a fourth grade unit of work, showing how a study of toys may be integrated with creative arts, dramatics, science, geography, or history.

One can read about toys and dolls in the College Library and then enjoy with increased appreciation the collection in the Kentucky Museum.

Modern Library Contains Much Vital Information

By Mrs. Lucille R. Stille

Although a modern library includes in its collection more than books, the book is still of first importance. A fascinating subject is the history of the making and selling of books, or what takes place before a book is put on the library shelf.

The book in America tells the story of United States book-making publishing and book-selling from Colonial times through 1950. Each fact of the book world is discussed copyright laws, rare book trade, censorship among others.

Lists and statistics relating to publishing are released annually. These appear in a January issue of Publisher's Weekly. In 1955 there were a total of 12,589 book titles published, 2,353 of these being new editions.

The top ten best-selling titles of fiction and non fiction for the year are given. A college library is interested in the notable books published during any given year. The Notable Books Council has chosen 46 books of 1955.

These were chosen on basis of sincerity and honesty of presentation, factual correctness, literary excellence, and contribution to man's understanding of himself and the times in which he lives.

Two non-fiction books appear on both the list of best sellers and notable books: Lindbergh, A.M., Gift from the Sea and Gunther, John, Inside Africa.

The complete list of notable books is as follows: Allen, G. W., Sallary Singer; Anderson, Erica, Barth, Alan, Government by Investigation; Marston, B. A. Ten, Pie valence of People; J. A. ## Miss Helm Has Unusual Documents

by Don Crouch

Miss Margie Helm, Head of Library Services, has some valuable documents that have been in her family for generations. One is a land grant written on a large sheet of parchment and signed June 13, 1757 by Robert Dinwiddie, governor of the colony and dominion of Virginia. On this deed Thomas Leewood is granted 150 acres in Lunenburg county in the colony of Virginia, by George the second, by grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King Defender of the Faith. Thomas Leewood sold the land a few years later to Moses Helm, great great grand-father of Miss Helm.

Moses Helm has two sons, Thomas and John. Both of these sons fought in the Revolutionary War and Thomas was killed at the Battle of Cowpens in North Carolina. Miss Helm has his commission which was given him in 1778. It is signed by Patrick Henry, governor of the commonwealth of Virginia, who appointed him a first lieutenant of the militia in Bedford county, Virginia.

In 1782 John Helm, great great grand father of Miss Helm, was commissioned a first lieutenant in the militia of Campbell county, Virginia. This document, which is also Miss Helm's possession, is signed by Benjamin Harrison, governor of the commonwealth of Virginia.

Moses Helm was the first of his family to come to the New World. Miss Helm has a copy of the family Bible which he had with him when he left Belfast, Ireland to come to the colonies. The original bible has been kept in Virginia.

Eliz. McWhorter, J.C. Embry, Jean Reid-Smith Head Media Cast

Elizabeth McWhorter will play the lead in 'Medea'.

J. C. Embry will play Jason

Jean Reid-Smith is cast as the nurse

Medea, a freely adapted variation of the Medea of Euripides, will be presented by the Western Players, to celebrate their tenth anniversary. It will be performed on April 24 and 25, in Van Meter Auditorium. This is the first time that anything of this nature has been given at Western.

To quote from Russell H. Miller, the director, "Medea has been chosen because it is the most playable and the most adaptable of any of the Greek originals of Sophocles and Euripides. It has been popular not only with commercial, but also with college groups, and communities throughout the country ever since Judith Anderson played it so successfully in New York. It is not the players purpose to copy the Judith Anderson interpretation in the staging of the play that was given in that production; even though Robinson Jeffers wrote his version for Judith Anderson. The excellence of its literary qualities are such that it is capable of a wide scope in interpretation and staging."

Medea is played by Elizabeth McWhorter; Jason by J. C. Embry, and the nurse by Jean Reid-Smith. The six women of Corinth are Carol Ann Cheal, Shirley Chandler, Carole Snyder, Diane Michael, Betty Webb and Mary Ward. The tutor is James Gabbard and the service women are Alice Faulkner, Joan Heltzley, Ann Clare Sharp and Hilda Arnold. Aegeus will be played by Julius Rather. The choreography is by Shirley Chandler and the whole production is under the direction of Russell H. Miller.

The setting of the play is in the courtyard of Medea's home in Corinth. The Play Production class is, at present, doing research into the architecture as decoration of the period. In the staging of the drama they wish to use a stage arrangement of the classical period. All of the Greek tragedies were played in front of the house, which might be a temple, palace or residence, in the presence of an altar where homage was paid to the household gods.

This drama is not an ancient Greek drama. It is modernized and revised. The trend is in keeping with the revival of interest in literature, which has been shown by numerous translations, and the present Broadway play, Tiger At the Gates, a tale of the Trojan War. Medea is exciting, full of realism and yet never once is the mystic poetry of Euripides lost.

Egg Tree Is Outgrowth Of Childrens Book

An egg tree on display in the library during Easter was constructed by Miss Emma Smith's class in Children's Literature. This was an outgrowth of a study of The Egg Tree, by Katherine Milks, which was the Caldecott award book in 1951.

The Egg Tree gives, in story and pictures, a record of an European folk art that has flourished for many years in America. Children of a Pennsylvania Dutch family annually made an Easter egg tree, painting the eggs in the old Dutch designs that Grandmothers remembered. All these designs are reproduced in the book with directions for making an Easter egg tree on the last page.

Remember this picture? It appeared in a recent issue of the Herald when the sophomore class started its "Keep Off The Grass" campaign. The campaign has proved a success, and students have respected signs put out by the class urging them to protect the beauty of the campus.

Keep Off Grass Campaign Proves Immediate Success

A successful "Keep off the Grass" campaign was recently initiated by the sophomore class. This campaign was the result of opinions expressed by the students and faculty to the effect that there were too many people walking on the grass and too many new paths being started at various places on the campus.

Ten signs were made and placed at specific grass walking places on the campus. Some of these signs were purposely stenciled backwards in order to draw attention to them. Jim Owens, class president, felt that if students saw these signs often enough the problem would be alleviated. The signs were placed around the campus two at a time, the next several weeks.

The sophomores' campaign seemed to do the trick. Now students who used to rush head-long over the green, now are more conscientious than ever before about trying to keep our campus beautiful.

The signs were designed as if the grass was warning people to use the sidewalks. Two examples are: "Please don't tread on me" and "Your feet are killing me."

Last year while attending the Grand National Debate Tournament at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va., Owens saw signs similar to the ones that were put around the campus.

O'Neil Wins Robinson Oratorical

"Don't ever send your children to church—take them."

This was the doctrine advocated by Gregg O'Neil in his prize winning speech: "Are Juveniles Delinquent?" which won the Robinson Oratorical contest held in the Little Theater on Sunday at 3 p.m., March 25.

Gregg O'Neil, winner of the Robinson Oratorical

Gregg, a sophomore biology major, is a member of the Western Players, a Prop and Wing alumnus, and a part-time announcer at WKCT.

Other participants in the contest were James Gabbard and Julius Rathier.

As one of several Ogden College traditions inherited and fostered by Western from the former boy's college, the Robinson contest was formerly a competition in declamation in which young men in the junior division of the academy participated.

Jimi Owens, who won last year's medal, presided over the contest.

O'Neil appeared on the Ogden Day program at chapel on April 4, along with Nancy Hightower, winner of the AAUW Oratorical contest and J. C. Embury winner of the Ogden contest.

The contest is managed by Russell H. Miller, Director of Speech Activities for the English department.

Life In A Girl's Dormitory Consists Of Many Surprises

By Mary Lou Taylor
Life in a girl's dormitory is unusual because you won't believe half the things that happen in this habitat. I didn't — that is until I lived in one three years.

To give you the proper background and setting, let's begin with "Freshman Days." The anticipating freshman moves in with a bang! For weeks she has been packing for school. Now the big moment has arrived, which means not less than six trips up the stairs to third floor with three huge suitcases, a wardrobe, hat boxes, curtains, rugs, a radio, lamps, shoe boxes, blankets, books, and a typewriter. All this doesn't disturb Susie — but oh, her poor parents.

The senior, who has learned better by now, carries only a suitcase and a hat box. Books, such as high school annuals and scrap books, are conspicuously absent. Experience is a dear teacher.

There are always a few freshmen who threaten to return home, disillusioned the second day. After a bit of persuasion from upperclassmen their determined minds are usually changed and they find they were merely homesick, not really unhappy.

Dorm rules are a must and a set of house rules belongs in every room. This still doesn't prevent a girl from forgetting to check out occasionally or getting a black mark during quiet hours.

In general, girls are good managers of their time. They take turns in cleaning their rooms or taking the linen down the hall for linen exchange. But guess what happens when Ann rushes in planning to do her laundry and discovers her roommate is a step ahead of her and has filled the room with wet clothes.

Have I convinced you that girls are unusual creatures? Well, listen to this.

Take my advice and don't go near the ironing room around 6:30 in the evening. It is filled to capacity with procrastinators who, just like you, have last minute pressing to do before their seven o'clock dates.

It is really nothing extraordinary to return from class at noon and find your furniture stacked in the hall — just the painters touching-up your room. Or the noise above you is just the girl upstairs practicing for her tap-dancing test tomorrow.

The envious "oh's" and "ah's" are truly sincere when everyone is stopping in to admire your new formal or the flowers for the ball.

Maybe all this sounds like a confused madhouse to the readers, but to many, many girls on the Hill this is home.

Western's "Mr. Big" To Lead Hilltoppers Nine

by John Lyon

Western's big double-barrel threat and the "Mr. Versatile Athlete" on the Hill, Bob Daniels, has fairly leaped out of his near legendary basketball togs into the Toppers baseball limelight.

The big, affable righthander, who is already being eyed by top baseball scouts, is the Top's number one moundman this season. The towering "6'6" junior from Tutor Key, Ky., who played such a major part in the Hilltoppers closing drive to finish as co-champions of the OVC basketball scramble, has all the power and talent to make Western a top contender in the conference hardball race. The Tops will attempt to bounce back from a 4-7 loss record compiled last year and they are odds on favorites to do just that with the help of the big Tutor Key product pouring them through there from the 60 foot mark. Daniels combines a blistering fast ball with a nifty change up curve and makes himself a constant menace to opposing batmen.

The easy-going hurler is a work-horse on the mound and will be a large part of the "big thunder" in the Toppers' nine this season.

The Tops crew should have one of the top hurling staffs in the conference race this season. Daniels will be strongly backed by a pair of classy Sophomore southpaws from Columbia-Wayne and Willard Smith. The "Smith twins," boasting a remarkable high school record, did a fine job last year and will definitely have a lot to do with the Toppers success this season. Another Sophomore ace, Larry Thomas who hails from Madisonville, looked good in relief roles last year will be counted on a great deal this coming season. Larry chucks them righthanded and has shown fine form in his work on the hill.

Diddle Now "Winning-est" Collegiate Coach

Coach Ed Diddle is now the "winning-est" coach in collegiate basketball.

Diddle gains this honor upon the retirement of 70-year-old Paog Allen of the University of Kansas.

After 34 years of coaching at Western, Diddle's record now stands at 646 games won and 215 lost. Also his Hilltoppers have won 32 conference and tournament championships.

Allen's teams had captured 771 games and lost 233 while winning 30 conference titles over an incredible 49-year period.

Only one active coach has coached longer than Diddle. He is Nat Holman the coach at C. C. N. Y. for 35 years.

Reds Spill Whites 26-13

Two breath-taking catches by freshman half-back Jerry Brewer enabled the Reds to spill the Whites 26-13, in the Toppers' spring intra-squad football game on Wednesday, March 28th.

Both passes came from the able arm of Carroll Van Hooser, each pass covering 30 yards. The Reds got their two other scores from half-back Jim Chambliss 63 yard run and a 2 yard plunge. Chambliss carried only 4 times, but gained an amazing total of 86 yards.

Freshman quarterback, Shifty Griffith figured in both White scores. He carried the ball 6 yards for one touchdown and passed to Kenny Beard for the other score that covered 63 yards. Beard caught the ball 45 yards from the end zone, reversed his field 4 times in a dazzling display of broken field running.

The Whites dominated the early minutes of the game, getting hard running from fullback, Wayne Duncan and good blocking in the line.

The Reds took command early in the second period. A pass from VanHooser to Brewer gave the

Diddle Granted Leave From Baseball Position

Ed Diddle, head baseball coach at Western for 33 years, has been granted a year's leave of absence from the post. Jack Clayton will be in charge of the diamond crew this spring.

A heavy schedule of basketball would have limited the time Diddle could have spent with the team for much of the season. There is also, the matter of recruiting freshmen for next year's basketball team. Much of that work is done in the spring.

Clayton, head football coach, has been assistant baseball coach for the past eight years. Drills were started March 28, and the first game will be played tomorrow against David Lipscomb.

'Tops In Sports

by John Lyon

Spring has Sprung! But there's one busy gentleman around the Hill who hasn't found the time to fall victim to the ever present "spring fever bug."

Coach Jack Clayton has taken over the full reins of the baseball crew this spring and has barely had time to scramble away from his gridiron men in time to ready the Topper nine for the opener tomorrow against David Lipscomb at the Western diamond.

The soft-spoken football and base ball mentor closed out spring football practice last week with the annual Red-White intersquad fracas. The pigskin roster this year is one of the most promising in several years. Look out Tech!

Coach Clayton has taken over the head baseball position in absence of Coach Diddle who is devoting much of his time to recruiting roundball talent for the coming season.

MEMPHIS STATE—Will they or won't they enter the O. V. C.? This question is one of the most interesting topics at hand in the conference today. Memphis State has voiced interest in the top-flight O. V. C. and would definitely add back bone and strength to an already strong conference.

The Tennesseeans were ranked 17th nationally in basketball last season and are perennial powers in the pigskin parade scheduling such powers as University of Kentucky and other top powers of the South.

The entrance of an institution such as Memphis would mean a big step up in the football world and would add class to a powerful basketball race. Here is one vote for the entrance of Memphis State to the O. V. C.

Toppers' Netters Again Led By Big Three Champs

Shanton, Gray, Moore—This "Big Three" led the Toppers to the OVC tennis championship last season—and all three are back on hand to exert their court supremacy this spring.

Last season Shanton, Gray and Moore played the number one, two and three positions respectively. With practice only a week gone there is a possibility of shake-up in the positioning this season.

Lynn Shanton, a junior biology major from Kingsburg, Calif., commanded the number one position last year. The classy junior is one of the most polished performers in the conference and is second only to John Powless of Murray who is one of the top players in the country. Shanton boasts a booming, deceptive Australian style service which throws his opponents off-stride constantly. Lynn will probably be the big mainspring in the Tops net attack this season.

Harry Gray, a Bowling Green product, is a junior chemistry-math major. It was Harry's smashing victory in the finals of the conference playoffs which gave Western the title last year. Gray commanded the number two position last season and was a big factor in Western's flashy 10-1 record compiled last spring. Harry has a smooth, consistent style of play and will be pushing all the way for top position.

Ballard Moore, a sophomore commercial art major from Bardstown showed great promise last year in his freshman debut as he held down the number three position. Ballard, possibly the hardest-working racquet-man on the asphalt, will be battling both Gray and Shanton "tooth and nail" for a top position. Moore closed the season out last year in improving his style all the way and will be a big bulwark in the Netters attack this spring.

Coach Ted Hornback will again coach the tennis team; and he is to be congratulated on turning out the conferences' top teams year after year. The Tops posted a 10-1 record last year and are favorites to nail down the flag this year.

Ron Clark Makes Tech Honor Five

COOKEVILLE, Tenn.—Bob Daniels, Forest Able, and Owen Lawson of Western Kentucky have just been named to Tennessee Tech's All-Opponent second team in basketball, Coach Johnny Oldham of Tech announced.

Members of the first five are Howie Crittenden of Murray, Win Wilfong of Memphis State, Dan Swartz of Morehead, Ronnie Clark of Western Kentucky, and Tim Hill of Siena.

Preston Accepts Position With Scherir

Robert L. Preston, BS '54, has accepted a position with the Scherir Corp., in Nashville.

Preston was an inspector for the Food and Drug Administration, Cincinnati, for the past year.

While at Western, Preston's major was Chemistry, with minors in biology and physics. He is a graduate of College High.

Chapel Is Painless

By Joe Walsh

Contrary to popular belief, chapel does not meet in the snack bar at ten o'clock Wednesday mornings. Now don't misunderstand me, because at ten o'clock on Wednesday, the snack bar was my favorite hang-out.

Let me tell you what happened when I accidentally stumbled into Van Meter auditorium by mistake, and believe me, at the time I really thought I'd "goofed" for good.

When I entered the auditorium I thought I'd better sneak in because some of my "Let's-don't-go-to-chapel—that's-for-sponsors—only buddies" might have slipped up and blundered into Van Meter too. If I'd been seen I would have been labeled a social outcast.

The first thing I noticed when I entered the building was the scarcity of people, and then I fully realized where I was. Anybody knows that only teachers and intellectuals attend chapel regularly. Suddenly a blinding thought struck me like a bolt from the blue. Western either has a serious shortage of teachers and intellectuals or else they too prefer the snack bar. There weren't enough people in chapel to stop a small scale dog and cat fight. In fact Van Meter was so empty that if someone had yelled "Fire" there would have been a private exit for everyone present.

I picked out a seat toward the rear (I was still afraid I'd be seen) of the auditorium and braced myself for the worst, which really turned out to be the best.

The program on this particular Wednesday was very interesting. Movies of the Western United States were being shown and after chapel was over I found that I hadn't missed the snack bar at all.

I found that chapel is usually entertaining, interesting and informing. "How do I know?" I kept on going to chapel out of sheer curiosity. Curiosity, that's what killed the cat but I've been lucky, it hasn't caught up with me yet. In fact if it hadn't been for my curiosity I wouldn't have found out that chapel is the best place on the campus to be at ten o'clock Wednesday mornings. Why don't you go and find out for yourself. I know you'll enjoy it.

Varieties Held April 18

The "W" club will present their fifth annual Variety Varieties Wednesday, April 18, at 7:30 p. m., at Van Meter auditorium.

Some of the most popular acts of last year, as well as many new ones will be presented. Everyone that saw the show last year will remember the hilarious "John and Marsha" act, starring Leon Dunagan and Twyman Patterson. Another crowd pleaser, Lennie Booth, will perform, as well as Joe Sharp and his quartet-direct from Birdland in New York City.

The show includes the ever popular She-Male contest and the eye filling chorus line. Flown in from Hawaii especially for this show will be the famous South Sea dancer, Miss Bill Curry. All this and many more exciting and hilarious acts will make up this year's Variety Varieties show.

Gifts donated by downtown merchants will be given to the best acts and the winner of the She-Male contest.

Western Teachers Have Unusual Hobbies

"Young man, get a hobby, preferably get two," was sound advice given by Edward Newton many years ago. A great number of people have heeded this advice. Several faculty members at Western realize the pleasure that can be gained from hobbies.

Dr. L. Y. Lancaster, of the Biology department, is interested in hunting, camping and fishing, and is particularly interested in collecting antique firearms. Through auctions, antique shops and general inquiry he has obtained old percussion rifles made by W. A. Thomas in Warren county, W. I. Heath in Allen county and Bitterlich in Nashville. These rifles are of the type used from about 1820 until after the Civil War. People in many areas of Kentucky call these old rifles "hog rifles" or "hog-faced" rifles because in relatively recent times they have been used only at hog killing time.

The revival of interest in antique firearms has been very widespread. There are approximately 8,000 antique gun clubs in the United States. The National Muzzle Loading Rifle Association holds two meetings each year at Friendship, Indiana. Dr. Lancaster attended the fall meeting in September of last year.

After Dr. Lancaster finds an old rifle, he reconditions it. He has four percussion rifles and two ancient shotguns in firing order and has actually hunted with them. He and several students at Western are members of a local gun club which held a fall shoot at Beech Bend this year. Only those using antique firearms participated in the contest.

Even though Dr. Donald Wilgus, of the English department believes "all collectors are crazy," he is an avid collector of old hillbilly and folk song recordings. He has made more than a hobby of his collection. Several years ago this interest led him to organize a ballad class. He is now gathering material to write a book concerning the relation of folk songs to hillbilly recordings. He writes hillbilly review columns for International Discophile and for Hillbilly Folk Record Journal, which is published in England. He became interested in hillbilly records in the early 1920's and since that time has collected approximately 2,000 folk and hillbilly records. He is especially interested in obtaining all the recordings of certain songs and discovering hillbilly versions of folk songs. Dr. Wilgus says students have been very helpful to him in adding to his collection.

Mr. Fred Schab, of Psychology department, is also a record collector. A former violinist and member of the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra, he has a collection of almost 300 records of classical, semi-classical and popular music. He has a high fidelity record playing system with a speaker cabinet that he made himself. Mr. Schab has used many of his records in his psychology classes to test the emotional reaction of students to different types of music.

Color photography has fascinated Miss Marjorie Clagett, of the Foreign Language department, for almost ten years. Her pictures of wild flowers have been accepted by several salons, and she has been listed several years in Who's Who in Nature Photography. She photographs wild flowers in their annual habitat with a 35-millimeter camera with close equipment.

Dr. J. R. Whitmer, of the Biology department, is also interested in color photography, but he doesn't limit his interests to one hobby. He has traveled extensively and is interested in gardening, golfing and raising rabbits.

Dr. Gordon Wilson, head of the English department, is an enthusiastic bird watcher. One of his favorite stops for studying birds is at the wet weather lakes near Woodburn. In recent years he has been particularly interested in birds in the Mammoth Cave area. He is especially concerned with the nesting and migration waves and with the number of different species observed in each year. In 1950 he reached his highest total, observing 206 species. This year he has observed 194 species. Dr. Wilson is the founder of the Kentucky Ornithological Society, is editor of the Kentucky Warbler and has contributed many articles about birds to various publications.

Mr. Hugh Johnson, of the Mathematics department, has a collection of 60 netsuke. These are tiny figures carved by Japanese artisans. The netsuke have a fascinating history. In the 1700's the Japanese wore kimono and sashes which had no pockets. They found it necessary to find a way to carry small articles. They devised a pouch with a cord to slip through the sash. At the end of the cord they attached a fob, which at first was a stick or small gourd. Eventually, however, they began to carve them from boxwood, later from ivory and jade. In the late 18th century wealthy Japanese spent much money for netsuke of special design. The netsuke maker became an important man in his neighborhood. Most of these artisans used great skill in carving these figures, which are usually about 1 1/2 inches in height. They cover almost every subject—some are grotesque and some are beautiful. In recent times the art of netsuke making has almost completely deteriorated. Mr. Johnson became interested in ivory carving three years ago and the skill and artistry of the older netsuke makers never cease to amaze him.

These are just a few of the many people at Western who believe with Sir William Osler that "No man is really happy or safe without a hobby."
